 Which ne'er might be repeated; who would guess
 If evermore should meet those mutual eyes,
 Since upon night so sweet such awful morn could rise.
 And there was mounting in hot haste; the steed,
 The snorting squadron, and the clattering car,
 Went pouring forward with impetuous speed,
 And swiftly forming in the ranks of war.

GENERAL GRANT: At Vicksburg. Upon the anniversary of American Independence, July 4th, 1863, and, after a close investment, Vicksburg surrendered with nearly 30,000 Confederate prisoners of war, 200 cannon and 70,000 stand of arms.

Unbounded courage and companion joined,
 Tempering each other in the victor's mind,
 Alternately proclaim him good and great,
 And make the hero and the man complete.

DESCRIPTIVE INDEX.

PLATE I.

ARMY MEMORIES: "Taps" have sounded—the last drum is ungirded—and the tented field is about to enjoy its well-earned rest.

No more shall the war-er sever,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger forever
When they laud the graves of our dead!
Under the sod and dew,
Waiting the judgment day;—
Love and tears for the Blue,
Tears and love for the Gray;

—Francis Miles Finch.

PLATE II.

FAREWELL: The Soldier's Departure.

Ah! then and there was hurrying to and fro,
And gathering tears and tremblings of distress,
And cheeks all pale which but an hour ago
Blushed at the praise of their own valorous deeds;
And there were sudden partings, such as press
The life from out young hearts, and choking sighs
Which ne'er might be repeated; who would guess
If evermore should meet those mutual eyes,
Since upon night so sweet such awful morn could rise.
And there was mounting in hot haste; the steed,
The mustering squadron, and the clattering car,
Went pouring forward with impetuous speed,
And swiftly forming in the ranks of war.

—Byron.

GENEPAUS SHERMAN, LOGAN AND MPHERSON.

MONOTONE—Stacked Arms and Colors, Baton, Drum and Bugle at Rest.

PLATE IV.

TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEER: The Corps of Topographical Engineers was organized at the commencement of the Civil War. In 1863 the corps was abolished and its officers were merged with the Corps of Engineers, the Chief of which latter organization ranked as a Brigadier-General. This arm of the service was mainly charged with the preparation of all works for the attack and defense of places by the armies in the field.

MONOTONE—Mess Fire and Camp Kettles.

PLATE V.

DEFENSE OF THE COLORS:

"Success to the flag of our nation,
Its folds all around us be spread!
Emblazoned with deeds of the valiant,
And crowned with the acts of the dead!"

MONOTONE—General Hancock and Staff at the Battle of Gettysburg.

PLATE VI.

THE ZOULAVE: Le beau Zouave.

With his graceful dress, soldierly bearing, and vigilant attitude, the Zouave at an outpost is the beau ideal of a soldier. —Gen. Geo. B. McClellan.

MONOTONE—Equipments, Utensils.

PLATE VII.

GENERAL SHERMAN: Now for a "march to the sea," since Atlanta is no more.

Guided by faith and matchless fortitude,
To peace and truth thy glorious way hast ploughed.

—Milton.

MONOTONE—Sword and Belt, Haversack and Canteen.

PLATE VIII.

A SPIRITED DASH: Along the extreme left, a battery of artillery is dashing up the hill to take position; the smoke and vivid glare of battle are seen in the distance.

" . . . Still the storm of battle rolls,
Blood is flowing, men are dying; God have mercy on their souls!
Who is losing? who is winning? over hill and over plain,
I see but smoke of cannon clouding through the mountain rain."

MONOTONE—A Caisson.

PLATE IX.

IN BATTERY: The commanding officer checks the advance of the batteries, which have now reached another height, whence a more destructive fire can be opened upon the enemy.

"For many a mile the rolling fire, the answering cannonade,
The hurrying shell, and plunging shot, and crashing fusillade,
Far as the eye can reach, the dreadful storm of battle roars;
The thundering squadrons maddly charge, the rattling grape-shot poms."

MONOTONE—Field Piece of Artillery.

PLATE X.

GENERAL SHERIDAN. The Shenandoah Valley. Sheridan's Ride from Winchester to Cedar Creek.

"I have brought you Sheridan all the way
From Winchester down, to save the day!"

Hurrah, hurrah for Sheridan!
Hurrah, hurrah for horse and man!
And when their statues are placed on high,
Under the dome of the Union sky,—
The American Soldier's Temple of Fame,—
There with the glorious General's name
Be it writ in letters both bold and bright:
"Here is the steed that saved the day
By carrying Sheridan into the fight,
From Winchester,—twenty miles away!"

—T. Buchanan Bird.

MONOTONE—Storming of the Forts.

PLATE XI.

THE OUTPOST:

" . . . If in the fray I fall,
Can I the mystic answer make,
When the angelic sentries call?
I pray that heaven may so ordain,
Where'er I go, what fate be mine,
Whether in pleasure or in pain,
I'll always have the countersign."

MONOTONE—Camp.

PLATE XII.

WELCOME HOME: The Soldier's Return.

O land of every kind the best,—
O land, whose glories shall increase;
Now in your wisest moment dress
For the great festival of peace.

Take from your flag its fold of gloom,
And let it float undimmed above,
Till over all our vales shall bloom,
The sacred colors that we love.

MONOTONE—Equipments at Rest.

On mountain high, on valley low,
Set Freedom's living fire to burn;
Until the midnight sky shall show
A redder glory than the morn.

Welcome, with shouts of joy and pride,
Your veterans from the war-path's track.
You gave your boys, untainted, untired;
You bring them men and heroes back!

—Philo Cary.

The fields forget the battles fought,
The trenches wave in golden grain;
Shall we neglect the lessons taught,
And tear the wounds agape again?
Sweet Mother Nature nurse the land,
And heal her wounds with gentle hand.

—Joaquin Miller
